

Recover Green Roofs were looking to implement software to assist with the management and scheduling of jobs to their field employees, as well as instant capture of data in the field. Researching mobility platforms that could assist with this, Recover Green Roofs have implemented and are already benefiting from implementing Klipboard, utilising its scheduling, management and workflow features.

Background

Recover Green Roofs is a design-build firm specializing in the creation and maintenance of green roofs, rooftop farms, roof decks & terraces. They are a company of dedicated Green Roof Professionals, landscape designers, horticulturists and craftsmen who work throughout buildings in the US - Boston, New England, and beyond.

Challenges

Recover Green Roofs provide the design and installation of green roofs for commercial, residential and institutional buildings alike. Once installed, the roofs were put onto a maintenance program. They were using Google Documents to manually input data on each project and there were often issues with this not working offline and there was no scheduling or management functionality with this.

Their approach was taking around 45 minutes a week inputting all of this data for the jobs sheets that were being complete and other larger reports were taking a few hours a week to format and complete.

Results

Realising the value of utilising a service mobility platform to enhance and streamline their business processes, Recover Green Roofs deployed Klipboard with an individual workflow report, a job sheet, created to their exact requirements and custom design.

They instantly saw the benefit of being able to schedule a job with a connected workflow to a field technician. The technician then has the ability to complete the job sheet onsite, even without internet connection, and then do a realtime sync back to the office, where it can be reviewed, approved for completion and then automatically invoiced to their customer.

The ability to manage the field team more efficiently whilst providing a report to their customer with more accuracy and speed has delivered real results for Recover Green Roofs. As an added benefit to their process, Klipboard has improved the billing process ensuring they get paid quicker.
